- WGST 1101-001 (CRN#10271) Intro to Women's Studies TR 9:30-10:45
WGST 1101-002 (CRN#10272) TR 12:30-1:45
K. Finley Introduction to values associated with gender and basic issues confronting women in society, from a variety of cultural and feminist perspectives.
- WGST 2050-002 (CRN#17671) Feminism and Popular Culture 100% ONLINE
J. Harmon 100% online course. Is the video game Portal a feminist masterpiece? Is Orange Is the New Black a feminist television show? This course will not answer these questions. Instead we will ask ourselves, what are the gender politics here? What kinds of gendered power structures tend to recur in our popular media? In this course we will analyze texts across a variety of pop culture mediums including video games, television, film, music, and more. We will discuss and analyze these pop culture texts as well as the power structures involved in the production of these texts. We will analyze and discuss popular culture through the feminist lenses offered by current feminist scholarship in popular culture studies.
- ~~WGST 2050-A02 (CRN#17383) History of Sexuality CANCELLED 4-20-17 TR 12:30-1:45
C. Hicks The course will focus on the history of sexuality in the United States from the colonial period until the late twentieth century by exploring how this complex history shapes our understanding of the American past. The course will address on how specific institutions – medicine, media, and the law – have played major roles in defining and regulating sexual expression, practices, and identities. In doing so, we will use primary and secondary sources to scrutinize how social, cultural, political, and economic conditions have affected changing meanings of sexuality.~~
- WGST 2051-001 (CRN#13630) Critical Race and Feminist Theories MW 11:00-12:15
E. Paquette We will consider how various constructions of the category of 'woman' and notions of oppression and sexism from the 20th century do not adequately provide an account of bodies of both racialized and sexed/gendered beings. In addition, two themes we will discuss are notions of 'intersectionality' and what it means to go beyond the 'black/white binary.' These discussions will enable us to develop a multifaceted account of race, and to better interpret how intersectionality requires a nuanced understanding of various cultural and racial differences among women of colour.
- WGST 2123-001 (CRN#17549) Women in Cross Cultural Perspectives MW 2:00-3:15
P. Katz A cross-cultural survey of the lives of women and the dynamics of gender throughout the world. Uses anthropological research to examine how gender influences evolution, social stratification, work, kinship, and perceptions of the body.
- WGST 2160-090 (CRN#16831) Intro to Lesbian and Gay Studies M 5:30-8:15
E. Lennon An introduction to the field of Lesbian and Gay Studies and its relationship to both the lives of LGBT people and society more broadly. Using interdisciplinary approaches that incorporate race, class, gender, and feminism as analytical categories alongside sexuality, we will look at the tools Lesbian and Gay Studies offers for understanding power and culture.
- WGST 2310-001 (CRN#12591) Gender, Activism, and Leadership (W) TR 12:30-1:45
J. Byrd This course is a Hybrid and for Gen-X students only - permit required. Students select and complete a community activism project focusing on a gender issue. Key issues and controversies of past and present feminist/social movements, and what activists are doing today. While exploring the components of ethical leadership, students learn how to apply classroom theory to the real world around them.
- WGST 3050-004 (CRN#14834) Women and Activism 100% ONLINE
N. Provolt 100% Online course. We will closely examine the movements that are creating change while examining social and cultural factors and the strong link to women in all parts of the world and their role in social activism.

WGST 3310-002 (CRN#12594) N. Provolt	Gender and Sexuality 100% Online course. An interdisciplinary introduction to gender and sexuality studies. Its primary focus is critical perspectives on the social construction of gender and sexuality, inequalities based on gender and sexuality, activism around issues of gender and sexuality, and how gender and sexuality shape and are shaped by other systems of inequality.	100% ONLINE
WGST 4050-001 (CRN#12086) E. Ergun	Transnational Feminisms This course explores how gender operates as a sociocultural, economic, and geo/political force in people's lives around the world and influences the configurations and operations of globalization, economic development, labor and migration, politics of sexuality and health, and transnational activism. In doing so, the course takes an intersectional and interdisciplinary approach to the critical study of gender and globalization as well as the formation of transnational feminism. It examines the ways in which women around the globe collectively and creatively respond to intersecting systems of domination and build alliances across differences and divides to intervene in such regimes of oppression. Rather than taking a comparative approach to women's realities and activism around the world, the course pursues a globally relational and self-reflexive framework and, in the process, highlights both the pitfalls and potentials of transnational feminist politics.	TR 11:00-12:15
WGST 4050-002 (CRN#16903) F. Harris	Black Masculinity, Health, and Sexuality This course is 100% online. This course is designed to allow students to explore the meanings of Black manhood and the various constructions of Black masculine identity in America and beyond. Students will discuss Black male sexuality including sexual identity development and theories on sexual orientation development. Critical analysis will also be given to masculinity theory and how masculinity influences African American men's health, reproductive health, healthcare use and relationships with women and LGBTQ individuals in the context of other health behavioral theories. Additionally, an intersectional exploration into how Black masculinity is embodied in race, class, education, gender, pop culture, hip hop culture, sports culture and prison culture will be examined in the context of masculinity dimensions.	100% Online
WGST 4050-004 (CRN#16146) K. Brintnall	Contextualizing the Catholic Sex Abuse Crisis "This course will examine the Catholic sex abuse crisis using several different angles of vision in an effort to understand its enormity and complexity. What do we notice, for example, when we look at the crisis in relation to a long history of American anti-Catholicism? What do we notice about its gendered character when we question our assumptions about the gender (and age and sexuality) of abusers and victims? What do we notice about its American character when we consider responses in Ireland or Latin America? What do we notice about its Catholic character when we consider sex abuse in other religious contexts or secular institutions? What do we notice when we place it alongside moral panics about daycare abuse, child pornography, and the sexual vulnerability of children? What does institutional homophobia in the Catholic Church, changing practices of seminary education, or the Church's commitment to clerical celibacy reveal about the crisis? Throughout the course and in their final research paper, students will engage primary resources from the digital archive amassed at BishopAccountability.org.	R 3:30-6:15

WGST 4050-005(CRN#17379) LGBTQ Literature & Film TR 2:00-3:15
K. Hogan
 This course focuses on culturally diverse LGBTQ fiction, drama, memoir, and film of the 20th and 21st centuries, with an emphasis on contemporary texts. We will study the writings within their historical, social, and political contexts, with attention to changing views of sexuality and gender and issues of self-representation within cultures.

WGST 4050-006 (CRN#17381) Philosophies of Emotion: TR 11:00-12:15
S. Sullivan Feminist and Critical Race Approaches
 Emotion often has been ignored or denigrated by philosophers, contrasted with reason and associated with the body, women, people of color, and other subordinated groups. Challenging dualisms of emotion versus reason, this course will focus on philosophies that explore the epistemological, political, existential, and other forms of emotion's relevance and value to human life. We will analyze emotions such as love, anger/rage, resentment, shame, and joy. The material for the course will range from historical to contemporary and will draw from a variety of philosophical and interdisciplinary traditions: continental, American, analytic, feminist, and critical race. Likely readings will come from the work of Plato, Nietzsche, William James, Sara Ahmed, Audre Lorde, bell hooks, and other contemporary authors.

WGST 4050-007 (CRN#17645) Hispanic Women Writers TR 3:30-4:45
